TRANSFUSION OF BLOOD.

A Buffalo paper of a recent date, after giving an explanation of the new science of transfusion, proceeds to speak of an interesting experiment, involving the transfusion of blood, which was made at the Buffalo Medical College recently, in the presence of the students of the College. The operator was William H. Mason, M. D., Professor of Physiology, who prefaced his experiment with a brief but interesting lecture on the transfusion of blood. The subjects upon which the operation was performed were two dogs, one a good-sized mongrel and the other a smaller animal having something of the coon-dog in his composition. The Professor was assisted by some of the members of the class, Mr. Charles Carey having charge of the larger animal. The larger dog was first laid upon the table, and after being put under the influence of ether, the Professor proceeded to expose the carotid artery. The apparatus through which the transfusion was to be effected was then produced. This consisted of a simple India-rubber tube about seven inches in length and having at each end a brass nozzle with a stop-cock. This tube was filled with a saturated solution of bi-carbonate of soda for the purpose of preventing the coagulation of the first blood passing through, and also preventing the ingress of air into the tube. One end of the pipe was introduced into the artery and the animal was laid aside, all the while unconscious of what was going on. The second dog, which received attention, was promptly anesthetized, and very soon thereafter Prof. Mason had laid bare the jugular vein. The other end of the tube was inserted into the artery, and thus a perfect tubular connection established between the blood vessels of the two animals.

The stop-cocks remained untouched, as the time for the more important use of the tube had not yet come. If the small dog must have blood from his larger and equally unconscious neighbor, there must be a reason for it, and this was soon supplied. In the second dog an artery was opened, and his life-blood was permitted to ebb rapidly away. It continued to flow till respiration ceased, and he was to all intents and purposes a dead dog. When the lungs had ceased to act, the flow of blood was instantly stopped, the stop-cocks attached to the tubes that connected the animals were opened, and the blood was allowed to flow from the larger dog into the smaller one which had been exhausted by the hemorrhage. Simultaneously with this artificial respiration was induced by intermittent compression of the thoracic walls, and this was continued for a period of three minutes, at the end of which time the animal himself breathed and was practically restored to life. A few minutes more and the flow of blood was stopped and the transfusion was complete. The tube was removed, the ligatures were deftly placed around the blood vessels which had been severed, and as the narcotic effects of the ether passed off and the stimulating properties asserted themselves, there were two intoxicated canines, nothing the worse for the experiment, to testify to the comparative harmlessness of the experiment and the skill of the operator. Both animals were doing well at last accounts, and the Professor concluded his illustration by instructing the students that before trying the experiment upon human beings they should repeat it two or three times on animals.

GRAND PACIFIC HOTEL, CHICAGO.
HILL.—Having purchased the entire furniture and taken a lease of this magnificent hotel, I have admitted Mr. Samuel M. Turner, formerly of the old Tremont House and late of the Palmer House, Chicago, and Mr. Tyler B. Gaskill, formerly of the Revere House, Boston, to an interest in the business, which will be conducted under the name of JOHN B. DRAKE & CO. The house covers one entire block, having a frontage south and east of over 500 feet. It is admirably located for the convenience of guests; is thoroughly built in the best manner, with all modern improvements. Every floor from basement to roof, encloses a four-inch layer of cement, which, with other safeguards, render it practically fire-proof. The ventilation is perfect, and the whole is being refitted with the addition of new and elegant furnishings required. The service, table and other accommodations being the same to all guests, will be maintained fully up to the high standard of their predecessors, and equal to any house in this or any other country, but the proprietors have decided to meet the just expectations of the public in these times of financial depression by graduating prices at from $3 to $4.50 per day, according to the location of the rooms occupied.

LEGAL NOTICES.
VIRGINIA: At Rules held in the Clerk's office of the Circuit Court of the city of Alexandria, on the 4th day of January, 1875: William A. Moore, plaintiff, against Henry S. Martin, defendant. In debt and upon an attachment.
The object of this suit is to recover against the defendant the sum of $100, with interest thereon from August 9, 1872, till paid, and to attach and subject to the payment of the same the interest of the defendant in the house and lot at the southwest intersection of Commerce and Fayette streets, in Alexandria city, Virginia.
The defendant not having entered his appearance and given security according to the act of Assembly, and the rules of this Court, and it appearing by affidavit that he is not a resident of this State, it is ordered that said defendant appear here within one month after due publication of this order, and do what is necessary to protect his interest in this suit; and that a copy of this order be forthwith inserted in the Alexandria Gazette, a newspaper published in the city of Alexandria, once a week for four successive weeks, and posted at the front door of the Court House of this city. A copy—test.
